created a chartered company and armed stock promoters with their power. He is the idol of the peculator, but the day must come some time when his art as a necromancer will be exhausted and when the great bubble of South African speculation will burst.

Meanwhile gambling goes on unabated. The astute Sir Augustus Harris not only knew how to make a popular hit in presenting a South Afrian drama in Drury Lanc, but he also was shrewd rough not to disparage mining properties. His villain is a swindling company promoter, but the propect turns out a good investment for credulous investors, after the bold, bad man has paid tribute to poetle justice. With the present rage for South Africans, it would have been bad policy not to have the mines turn out well. Sir Augustus Harris is not the man to make a mistake like

There ought to be a large public demand for literature about the new gold countries. Macmillan will publish next week an important book on the gold mines of the Rand, with many maps and pictures, and with text by Frederick H. Hatch and I. A. Chambers, and a prefatory chapter by John Hays Drummond. All three writers are well-known experts, and the book is a graphic ccount of the mining industry in the South African Republic. It will not diminish stock operations, for Mr. Hammond says that the output of gold from the Rand fields was over 2,000,000 Curiously enough, the published accounts of these mining operations have been inadequate, although there has been a vast volume of business in Rand shares, both in London and

Among Macmillan's other books next week will be "A Long Vacation," by Miss Yonge, and another novel by Mrs. Flora Annie Steel. The same firm will issue "Veronica's Garden," an illustrated book, written by Alfred Austin as a companion to his "Garden That I Love." Ian Maclaren's new book, "In Days of Auld Lang Syne," will appear late in October. It promises to be as fresh a collection of study stories, grave and humorous, as his first series. T. Fisher Unwin is about to publish a series of dog stories collected by St. Loe Strachey from the files of "The Spectator," where anecdotes of animal intelligence have been a popular feature for many years. Mr. Gladstone has nearly completed his new edition of Butler's "Analogy," which will be published before Christmas, while he is in the

The revolt of the curates has collapsed before it fairly began. After a stormy meeting at Zion College, a motion for the formation of a curates' union and church reform society was defeated, the main contention of the objectors being that it would virtually be a trades-union, having for its motive what any bottle-washer or general laborer has in view when he opens a labor agi-One organizer of the movement asked the minority to remain behind and form a union after the majority had retired. There was a renewal of the excitement, and one curate, standing on a chair, shouted: "You are a lot of blackguards." While the proposals of the rewere rejected with scorn and ridicule, the curates have many real grievances, although it would be folly for them to attempt to secure redress for them by the methods of trades-union-They may reasonably claim security of tenure in the parish and in many cases an inof pay to something like living wages. The agitators among the curates have overdrawn the case when they assert that they are looked upon as the servants of the incumbents

Otherwise, domestic politics, like foreign diplomacy, are very stale. The Ministers are dumb as oysters, and the discussion of a change in the Liberal leadership is like froth on a stagnant pool. The rumor is renewed that Mr. Chamberlain will enter the Carlton Club, but he is out of sight, and his influence is felt only when some new Colonial Governor is appointed.

The Chicago Irish Convention is not taken seriously, either in England or Ireland.

The intense heat of the week has been the main topic of conversation. The nights have been cool. but the mercury has been above 80 degrees day after day, with a maximum about 22 degrees in excess of what is normal at the close of September. The hot weather has caused great discomfort in the southern counties and in London since the people have not known how to dress for it, but have gone about in heavy underwear, black coats and high hats. If anybody had been able to set forth the why and wherefore of this belated burst of heat, with the sun already over the line, patience might have been a virtue, but not even "The London Times" has succeeded in explaining it in an authoritative manner, and no other thunder has cleared the air. The heat interfered seriously with pleasure and sport at Newmarket, where the racing was dull. Perhaps the highest degree of heat has been registered in Scotland Yard, where detectives have been trying to unravel a second startling robbery. Their sufferings were intense when a messenger named Watts strolled into a bank and carried off, by means of a forged letter, Mrs. Langtry's jewels, worth $200,000. Before they could regain their composure, thieves ran away with 35,900 ounces of silver bullion in broad daylight. The silver robbery bore evidence of a carefully as anged plan, which, with good detective work, would lead to the arrest of the robbers. A carman signed the receipt for the treasure, and drove off from St. Pancras Station with five cases, but stopped on the way across London for breakfast at a festaurant, the boy on the seat with him going in also. When they returned, horse, van and buillon had vanished. Within an hour horse, van and empty cases were found a mile away in a side street, the robbers having transferred the sliver to another vehicle and gone off with it. The detectives obtained clews, made an important arrest and recovered a portion of the Radical changes in the methods of handling valuable property ought to result from the two recent robberies. Wagonloads of treasure ought not to be carted about as carelessly as garden truck, nor should it be possible for an ingenious student of soap and powder advertisements to forge an order and carry off an actress's diamonds without exciting suspicion.

The chief novelty of the London stage this week has been "Her Advocate," by Walter Frith, produced at the Duke of York's Theatre, formerly the Trafalgar Theatre. It is a play with much law in it, and a murder trial which is well man-The motive is expressed in ten words: "There is in every man's life a mad three weeks." An eminent advocate is engaged to defend a young nurse falsely accused of poisoning a patient who has made a will in her favor. He falls in love with his client, and neglects the young woman he has promised to marry. The prisoner innocently reveals to him the fact that she is betrothed to another, and his infatuation ends when he finds himself in a fool's paradise. The real murderer dies in the witness-box, and all ends well. The play is ingenious, with some strong situations, the interest in the last act being intense. Mr. Charles Cartwright as the advocate, Miss Gertrude Kingson as the nurse and Mr. C. W. Somerset as the murderer did full justice to their parts. The play ought to succeed, but the London public is capricious. "Alabama" will be replaced at the Garrick by Jerome's play, "The Way to Win a Woman." Mr. Toole brings a prosperous season to a close to-night at his theatre, and starts for a tour of the provinces. "Romeo and Juliet" is drawing well at the Lyceum. Mrs. Patrick Campbell is stronger in the scenes with the Nurse than on the opening night, and continues to fascinate her audiences with her subtle acting. Daly's Theatre reopened to-night with a new edition of "An Artist's Model." The house was sold two hours after the box office was opened on Monday, with only a dozen paper seats reserved. This musical comedy has not been materially altered; all the popular performers are retained, but new songs and dances are introduced. The large audience was wild with delight. Sir Augustus Harris sailed to-day for New-York.

The Leeds Musical Festival will be opened next week by the Prince of Wales. It promises to be the most successful of the autumn festivals. I. N. F.

POLITICAL ODDS AND ENDS. BROOKLYN PRIMARIES ON TUESDAY NIGHT.

REPUBLICAN DISTRICT LEADERS NAMED POLIT-ICAL SCHEMES OF INTEREST ON FOOT.

Primaries for the election of delegates to the city, county, Senate, Aldermanic, Assembly and ward conventions of Kings County will be held on Tuesday night and on Thursday night at the old 14th Regiment Armory in North Portland-ave. The Republicans will select their candidate to succeed Mayor Schieren and carry forward the reforms be gan by the present Republican administration. Unusual interest centres in every change or indication of a change on the political chessboard of municipal politics.

Ex-Senator Worth, after a futile attempt to keep Senator Reynolds under cover until convention night, has it is announced, abandoned that idea, and now his friends are saying that William Cu Bryant, of "The Brooklyn Times," will have all the support that Mr. Worth can marshal. A wellknown Republican politician close to Mr. Worth told a Tribune reporter yesterday that while Mr. Bryant was a little too independent to suit "the looked upon as the servants of the incumbents and are the common butt of playwrights and satirists; but certainly the lot of the poor curate is not always a happy one, and it is not strange that a trades-union was proposed by those least contented with it.

The Church Congress is not likely to take up the subject next week at Norwich, but the question of the reunion of the Christian world will be the target for long-range discussion. The Oxford digressan conference was unable this week to pass a resolution in favor of prayers for reunion on Rogation Day until several violent speeches had been made in reply to the Pope and Cardinal Vaughan and their "insults to the history Church of England."

Meanwhile, the Congregational Union is sounding an alarm against the proposals for an in-

Among the Democrats it is the growing belief that the Shepardites are in a bad way, provided Judge Gaynor decides to accept a so-called People's nomination indorsed by the machine Democrats. President James McMahon, of the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank, who is enthusiastically booming the Judge, said yesterday:

"I have a firm belief that if the nomination were accorded him by the people Judge Gaynor would accept it. He would have accepted the nomination for the Mayoralty two years ago, but he was given to understand that the reformers were opposed to him, and that other interests were opposed to him, and that he could not be elected if he was nominated. I think the Judge would rather be active in politics and in his profession than remain on the bench."

in politics and in his profession than remain on the bench."

Edward M. Shepard is exceedingly "foxy" when approached on the subject of his own candidacy for Mayor. It is believed that he would far rather direct his forces from the fence this year and manipulate his alleged balance of power by smashing a few idois than run the risk of defeat himself. McCarren's signal victory at the primaries in the Fourteenth, Fifteenth and Sixteenth wards on Friday night over the better element in the machine Democracy was an object lesson to Mr. Shepard and his friends. They are beginning to see that while Chairman James D. Bell holds out the olive branch he carries in his coattail pocket at the same time a McLaughlin sandbag. The old gang are all betting on the efficacy of the sandbag.

STILL SWELLING. London, Sept. 28.-The lull in English internal polities will be broken very soon. An informal council of the Cabinet will be held about the middle of next month. Lord Rosebery, on October 16, will make a speech at Scarborough, and it is expected that he will then outline the Liberal position. The Marquis of Salisbury speaks at Watford on October 30, and H. H. Asquith, Sir George C. Trevelyan, G. N. Curzon, Under Foreign Secretary; W. St. John Broderick, Under Secretary for War, and a number of others are announced to reappear in the arena before the end of October. What the coun try chiefly awaits is an explicit disclosure of the Government's projects for the coming session of Parliament. Everything points, not only to one. but to two sessions devoted chiefly to Ireland. Ac-cording to "The Times," the land question will be settled in 1895, and this will be followed by an Irish local-government measure in 1897, which will probably include the creation of a central council in Horace Curzon Plunkett, who accompanied Gerald Balfour on his recent tour of Ireland, and who is now recognized as the adviser of the Chief Secretary, has developed a scheme for the establishment of an Irish Board of Agriculture, which is certain to lead to the formation of other special Irish departments.

"The Westminster Gazette" and other Liberal oradmit that the Unionists have begun their administration of Irish affairs with a settled determination to avoid coercion by adopting the lines followed by their Liberal opponents. "Irishmen," says "The Westminster Gazette," "who, in their haste, call the Parliamentary movement a failure, speak prematurely. If the Unionist programme is carried out it will give a nucleus of home rule. Then it will be the work of the Liberals and the Irish gradually to co-ordinate the Irish local bodies and endow them with fresh powers, until the country wakes up to find home rule established with the consent of all parties." Marquis of Salisbury has promised leading

Irish Unionists that he will visit Dublin and the South of Ireland in July of next year, if the business of the session will permit. Obviously proposed tour is a part of the Government's con-dilatory policy.

Lord Londonderry, in a speech at Ripon last evening, confirmed a report which first appeared in "The Chronicle" that the Unionist leaders contemplate a drastic change in the constitution of the louse of Lords. Lord Londonderry has been Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and was offered, but de-clined, a post in the present Cabinet, and he can therefore be regarded as an authority. He declared in favor of a second Chamber with what he termed useless peers excluded. His statement did not include a definite scheme. It is too soon yet to expect a thoroughly defined plan, but it is marvellous to observe how "The Chronicle's" announcement that the idea of reform accepted by the Unionist chiefs was an Upper House, constituted partly of elective, partly of selective elements, has been acclaimed by the Conservative press. "The Pall Mall Gazette" and "The Graphic" comment approvingly on the scheme. The Tory "Globe" holds that the Government ought to undertake the reform, making the second Chamber as strong as possible. The Radical press eyes the proposals askance, as tending to create a Senate and check the powers of the House

Chauncey M. Depew's prediction of a speedy collapse of the South Africa boom, scattering widespread ruin, has been reprinted here. It has not btained the respect of city circles or of the speculative public, among whom the period of collapse is held to be distant. In the mean time everybody chances fortune The settlement just concluded was expected to shake out the weak-kneed and check speculation, but nobody was hurt and the amount of ousiness in what is called the Kaffir circus was more enormous than ever. A number of members of the London Stock Exchange, being satisfied, incredible as it may seem, with the fortunes already realized, have retired from the business. Their retreat, howhas not touched the public confidence in sustained future speculation and there is no sign of weakening anywhere. The greatest English financlers, including the Rothschilds, French and German banks and all European bourse operators, have become interested in the boom. Apart from mere speculation, the solid developments of mining land host of investments.

The visit of the King of the Belgians to France, which at first was supposed by the Paris newspapers which at first was supposed by the Paris newspapers to be merely one of pleasure, is now known to relate to the Congo State. King Leopold has had several conferences with M. Hanotaux, French Minister of Foreign Affairs and also with the chief of the French Foreign Cabinet. The French papers that assert that the King offered to sell the Congo State out and out to France seem to be ignorant of the fact that he was in London before going to Paris and was negotiating here on the same subject. It is the opinion of the best informed that King Leopoid is trying to arrange for the sale of the Congo State on the basis of a division of territories between France, Germany and England. It is a complicated affair, Heigium, in 1830, granted to the Congo State a loan of ii.000,000, without interest, with power to annex the State after the expiration of ten years. Then France, if the State is ever offered for sale, has the right of pre-emption. King Leopold is much harrassed both in a monetary and in a political way. He wants the affairs of the Congo State wound up summarily. He doesn't seem to care whether he sitrs up feuds between France and England and Germany; he only wants to get out.

King Leopold's private extravagance and his newly formed relations with an actress of the Folles-Hergère, are the subject of sensational comments in a Brussels paper. Hitherto the Belgian press has been silent in regard to His Majesty's froiles, but they were well known in London society, where talk of his goings-on at the West End and at Brighton have almost ceased to be of interest. to be merely one of pleasure, is now known to relate

DRASTIC MEASURES FOR CHINA. ENGLAND WILL INSIST UPON THE PUNISHMENT OF

CHEO TAOTI, THE VICEROY OF SZE-CHUEN. London, Sept. 28.-The demonstration of a power ful British squadron proceeding up the Yang-tse-Kiang is the sequence of the tacit refusal of the Peking Government to satisfy the demands of the Marquis of Sallsbury for the punishment of the late Viceroy of Sze-Chuen, whom British Minister O'Connor reported to be responsible for the outrages beginning in May at the mission stations at Cheng-Tu, which were followed by the massacre at Ku-Cheng. The viceroy's term of office expiring, he left Cheng-Tu, and the Peking Government tried to induce Minister O Connor to believe that the withdrawal of the viceroy had been enforced, and that this action on the part of China ought to satisfy the British Government. Lord Salisbury, however, instructed the British Minister that nothing would suffice less than a public imperial decree banish ing the viceroy beyond the frontiers of China, with a statement that the crime for which he was punished was neglect to afford protection to the missions. This action of Lord Sallsbury appears to have been prompted by the conviction, doubtless based upon Foreign Office reports, that the Chinese literati, abetted by most of the higher officials. forment agitation sgainst Europeans generally, and not against the missions alone, and that the degradation of the viceroy of Sze-Chuen would be a blow to the literati and an effective example to the whole of China.

The decisive attitude of England disposes of the report that the Foreign Office entertained a proposal to withdraw the missionaries to treaty ports. It is understood that the United States Government, although not actively co-operating with the British Government, has been informed of and approves the latter's plans to protect the missions, which involve the strongest practical measures, in the event of the mere squadron demonstration not proving sufficient to wake up the Government at Peking. a statement that the crime for which he was pun-

MAIL CARS IN THIRD-AVE

A SUCCESSFUL TRIAL LAST EVENING. OFFICERS OF THE ROAD AND A NUMBER OF

GUESTS MAKE THE JOURNEY TO ONE-HUN-DRED-AND-TWENTY-FIFTH-ST.-CROWDS

WATCH THE CARS GO BY.

The new postal cable cars took their maiden trip over the Third Avenue Company's line last evening Elaborate preparations for the journey had been made by the officials of the road, and the result was that the invited guests who rode in the cars had a triumphal procession over the line. At 8 o'clock about fifty officers of the Postoffice and the cable company, newspaper men and other guests from New-York City and its neighborhood set out on the trip from Sixth-st. to One-hundred-andtwenty-fifth-st. and Columbus-ave.

The cars had not been constructed for passenger service, but on this occasion they served as passenger coaches and smokers combined, entirely to the satisfaction of all. Those who could not find chairs used the wide assorting and distributing tables.

It was hard to understand how so many people had heard of the trial trip, but at every corner and along the streets there were crowds of onlookers. The small boys were loudest in their expressions of appreciation, and they succeeded well in giving the 'wheeled postmen" a royal welcome all along the satisfaction over the splendid equipment of the cars appearance. "They are absolutely complete in every detail," said Superintendent Robertson, of the Thirdave, road, "and they take to the tracks remarkably well, when you consider that this is their first trip. There was an electrician aboard. From him cam a change from gas to electricity as the illuminating power would be a good thing, but most of the passengers were sure that they could see well enough power would be a good thing, but most of the passengers were sure that they could see well enough with the aid of the three gas lamps.

The occupants of the third car had a good laugh at Superintendent Robertson's expense in front of the Sixty-fifth-st, station, when the gripman showed that he was no respecter of persons by starting off at a lively pace before the Superintendent had re-entered the car. But his feilow passengers railled to his aid and pulled him through the door just as the car reached a high rate of speed. The company's surgeon, who happened to be in that car, looked pale for a moment, but the superintendent had no need for his services.

The Colonial Hotel at One-huadred-and-twenty-fifth-st, and Eighth-ave, was the objective point of the officers and their visitors on their uptown trip. The landlord of that Harlem hostelry had put forth his best effort and filled a long table in one of his parlors with all sorts of edible and drinkable good things it required only a short time to attend to the inner man, and then the speech-making began. This, the last feature of the programme, was one of the pleasantest, but it came to an end in time to interfere in no degree with a strict and oroper observance of the Sabbath. The following were the invited guests of the evening: Charles W. Dayton, F. J. Swift, E. Morgan, Richard C. Jackson, Henry E. Mack, George W. Dwenger, Thomas J. Clark, J. Elliott, H. Neagle, General Fitz John Porter, T. H. Jardines, Frank Roome, E. S. Post, J. H. McKenna, Joseph E. Haynes, James Curren, A. T. Sullivan, Charles H. Lyon, H. A. Smith, J. H. BERRY WINS AT MORRISTOWN

AN INEXPERIENCED GOLF PLAYER TAKES THE DAY'S HONORS.

INCREASING INTEREST SHOWN BY THE LARGE NUMBER OF ENTRIES AND THE

That golf is attracting a larger following than ever at Morristown this fall was shown by the number of entries and the interest displayed in the men's handicap held at the club yesterday afternoon The match was won by Arthur Berry, a comparatively inexperienced player, whose scorwas 121-36-85. His handicap was liberal, and he profited by it. William Shippen, whose only rival for the supremacy of the club is Henry P. Phipps, made the best actual score, handing in a card of 31, scratch. From the start he played strongly and in his best form, skilfully avoiding all bunkers and hazards, and covering the first nine holes in 42the best half that he or any amateur has made on the links. Four or five strokes were all he needed for most of the holes, with six for the long

"meadow" of 458 yards.

H. P. Phipps scored 97, seratch. His drives were excellent, and his iron shots good, but he lost stroke occasionally on the putting-greens, and in that way injured his score. In playing "The Hoo doo," he cleared the track brilliantly and landed almost on the green.

G. Little, C. D. Chapman, and B. L. Chandler were the other players whose scores were note worthy. They all have small handlcaps, which are worthy. They all have small handleaps, which are likely to be cut still further as the men gain in experience.

A large number of people were present to watch the tournament and many of them stayed to tea in the clubhouse afterward. The third of a series of dances which the club has been giving was held in the evening from 8 until 10 o'clock. The scores in the match were:

TO MOVE TO NEW STABLES.

The Metropolitan Traction Company will cease to occupy the stables of the Sixth Avenue Railroad Company at Forty-third-st. to-morrow, and will move the cars and horses of the Sixth-ave. line to the new stables at Fliftieth-st. When the Sixth Avenue Railroad Company leased its line to the Metropolitan Traction Company for a term of 800 years, it retained the property at Forty-third-st. years, it retained the property at Forty-tindustry, and it has since sold a portion of it.

At the office of the Metropolitan Traction Company yesterday it was said that the work of changing the Sixth-ave, line into an electric railway would be begun next spring. The electric wires will be run in conduits under ground, as in the new line on Lenox-ave, which has given much satisfaction and is believed to be superior to a cable road.
